

The Most Beloved Servants of Allah: A Comprehensive Analysis of Prophetic Teachings

Introduction

In the vast corpus of Islamic tradition, few teachings capture the essence of spiritual excellence as profoundly as the prophetic statement recorded in Tuhaf al-'Uqul. The Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him and his family) declared:

"The most beloved of Allah's servants to Allah are those most beneficial to His servants, and those most upright in fulfilling His rights, to whom good (Ma'ruf) is made beloved, and its actions."

This comprehensive prophetic saying establishes a tripartite framework for understanding what constitutes spiritual excellence and divine love. It transcends mere ritualistic devotion, presenting a holistic vision of faith that integrates social responsibility, personal piety, and an intrinsic love for virtue. This article explores these three dimensions in depth, drawing upon the rich tradition of the Ahl al-Bayt (peace be upon them) to illuminate the path toward becoming among the most beloved servants of God.

Part One: Most Beneficial to His Servants (أَنْفَعُهُمْ لِعِبَادِهِ)

The first and perhaps most emphasized characteristic of those beloved to Allah is their active beneficence toward others. This principle establishes that true spirituality cannot exist in isolation; it must manifest in tangible service to creation.

The Foundation: All Creation as Allah's Dependents

A profound Hadith Qudsi transmitted through Imam Ja'far al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) establishes the theological basis for this teaching:

"Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, 'Creatures are My dependents. The most beloved among them to Me is the most compassionate of them toward the others and who endeavors the most to help them.'"

(Al-Kafi, Volume 2, Book 1, Chapter 84, Hadith #10)

The concept of 'iyal Allah (the dependents of Allah) carries profound implications. Just as family members depend on their provider for sustenance and protection, all creatures depend entirely on Allah for their existence, well-being, and provision. This divine declaration establishes a sacred relationship: when we serve Allah's creatures, we are serving His dependents, and this service becomes a direct path to His love.

Imam Ali ibn Abi Talib (peace be upon him) elaborated on this concept in his renowned sermon:

"His creatures are His dependants, for whom He has guaranteed the means of subsistence, and apportioned provisions."

(Nahj al-Balagha, Sermon 91)

The implication is clear: Allah has taken upon Himself responsibility for His creation, and He loves those who mirror this divine attribute by caring for His dependents.

The Prophetic Emphasis on Benefiting Others

The Messenger of Allah consistently emphasized that the measure of one's value lies in their benefit to others. When asked directly about the most beloved people to Allah, he responded:

"The most beneficial of people to people."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 16, Section 3, Chapter 22, Hadith 21713)

This response is remarkable in its simplicity and depth. It does not specify ritual worship, theological knowledge, or ascetic practice—though these remain important—but rather identifies benefit to others as the primary criterion for divine love.

Another profound narration states:

"All creation are the dependents of Allah, and the most beloved to Allah, the Mighty and Majestic, are those who benefit His dependents most."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 16, Section 3, Chapter 22, Hadith 21720)

The Prophet further specified that this beneficence should extend to the most intimate level of human life:

"The creatures are the dependents of Allah. The most beloved creature to Allah is the one who is most beneficial to Allah's dependents (like family members) and who provides the utmost happiness to a family."

(Al-Kafi, Volume 2, Book 1, Chapter 70, Hadith #6)

This teaching emphasizes that while our service should extend to all creation, it begins at home—with our families and those immediately dependent upon us.

The Believers as Servants to One Another

Imam Ja'far al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) further illuminated the nature of mutual responsibility among believers:

"The believers are like servants for each other."

When asked, "How can they be each other's servants?" the Imam replied:

"They benefit each other."

(Al-Kafi, Volume 2, Book 1, Chapter 72, Hadith #9)

This teaching transforms the concept of brotherhood from a passive relationship to an active commitment to mutual service. A believer is not merely expected to avoid harming others but is called to actively serve, support, and benefit fellow believers.

The relationship among believers is further described as that of a single body:

It has been reported that Imam Ja'far al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) said:

" The believers in their reverence, affection and compassion for each other are like one body; when it falls ill, it affects all over with restlessness and fever."

(Kitab al-Mu'min by Husayn b. Sa'id al-Ahwazi, Book 1, Chapter 3, Hadith #9)

This organic unity demands that believers share one another's burdens and actively seek to alleviate their suffering.

Comprehensive Aid and Support

Islamic teachings, particularly as transmitted through the Imams of the Ahl al-Bayt, provide extensive guidance on what it means to benefit others. Imam Ja'far al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) outlined seven obligatory rights that believers owe to one another:

1. Empathy and Reciprocity: To love for one's brother what one loves for oneself, and to dislike for him what one dislikes for oneself—the "simplest right" that serves as the foundation for all others.
2. Comprehensive Assistance: To help with one's self, wealth, tongue, hands, and feet. This includes not only material aid but also emotional support, guidance, and practical assistance.
3. Mutual Pleasure: To pursue what pleases one's brother and avoid what displeases him (within the bounds of obedience to Allah).
4. Sincere Counsel: To be his eyes, his guide, and his mirror—providing honest feedback and guidance.
5. Sharing Resources: Not to eat to satiety while he is hungry, not to drink to quenching while he is thirsty, and not to clothe oneself while he remains without clothing.
6. Practical Sharing: If one has a servant and the other does not, to send one's servant to wash his clothes, prepare his food, and make ready his bedding.
7. Visitation and Support: To visit him when ill, attend his funeral, and hasten to fulfill his needs before he must ask.

The Immense Rewards for Helping Believers

The tradition records extraordinary rewards for those who actively benefit their fellow believers. Imam Ja'far al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) stated:

" Whoever fulfills a need for his believing brother, Allah will fulfill one hundred thousand needs for him on the Day of Resurrection, the first of which is Paradise, and among them is that He will admit his relatives, acquaintances, and brothers to Paradise provided they are not Nisaba (enemies of Ahlul Bayt)."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 16, Section 3, Chapter 25, Hadith 21753)

The Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) further emphasized:

" Whoever fulfills a need for a believer, Allah will fulfill many needs for him, the least of them being Paradise."

These narrations establish that service to fellow believers is not merely a commendable act but an investment in one's own salvation. The "least" reward for fulfilling a single need of a believer is Paradise itself.

Even the effort to help, regardless of outcome, carries immense reward:

"Whoever goes to fulfill the needs of his believing brother and spends an hour in it, whether it is during the day or night (whether that need is fulfilled or not)... his reward is more than staying for a month in i'tikaf in Masjid al-Haram."

(Man and Society, "Fulfilling the Needs")

The comparison is striking: striving to help a fellow believer surpasses the reward of an entire month of spiritual retreat in the holiest mosque.

The Consequences of Neglecting Aid

Conversely, the tradition warns severely against neglecting the duty to help fellow believers when capable. Imam Ja'far al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) warned:

" Whenever a believer comes to his brother with a need, it is a mercy from Allah that He has driven and directed to him. If he fulfills the need, he has accepted the mercy by accepting it. If he turns him away from his need while being able to fulfill it, he has only turned away from himself a mercy that Allah the Mighty and Majestic had driven and directed to him. Allah the Mighty and Majestic will store that mercy until the Day of Resurrection, until the one who was turned away from his need becomes the one who decides about it - if he wishes he can direct it to himself, and if he wishes he can direct it to someone else. Then he said: Be certain that he will not turn it away from himself. O Ismail, whoever's brother comes to him with a need that he can fulfill but does not fulfill it, Allah will set upon him a snake that will bite his thumb in his grave until the Day of Resurrection, whether he is forgiven or punished."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 16, Section 3, Chapter 25, Hadith 21757)

Imam al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) said::

"A believer who fails to assist their brother while they are capable of doing so will be forsaken by Allah in this world and in the Hereafter."

(Children Quran And Sunnah-Muhammadi Reyshahri)

A particularly striking narration describes the punishment for neglecting this duty:

It has been reported that Imam al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) said:

" If any believer asks his fellow brother to help him and he refuses while he is able to do, Allah will impose on him a serpent in his grave to bite his fingers."

(Kitab al-Mu'min by Husayn b. Sa'id al-Ahwazi, Book 1, Chapter 5, Hadith #13)

These severe warnings underscore the gravity of failing to serve one's fellow believers when one has the capacity to do so.

Beyond Fellow Believers: Universal Compassion

While the teachings emphasize service to fellow believers, the principle extends to all of Allah's creation. Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him and his family) said:

" All creation are the dependents of Allah, and the most beloved to Allah, the Mighty and Majestic, are those who benefit His dependents most."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 16, Section 3, Chapter 22, Hadith 21720)

Another narration, transmitted by Abu Abdillah (peace be upon him) as a Hadith Qudsi, states:

"Allah, the Most Majestic, the Most Holy, has said, 'Creatures are My dependents. The most beloved among them to Me is the most compassionate of them toward the others and who endeavors the most to help them.'"

(Al-Kafi, Volume 2, Book 1, Chapter 84, Hadith #10)

Prophet Mohammad (peace be upon him and his family) said:

" All people are (members of) God's household, but the dearest to Him are the most beneficial for their own family "

(Nahj Al-Fasahah)

This compassion extends to all creatures, as the Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) demonstrated through his treatment of animals and his admonition to show mercy to all of God's creation. Prophet Mohammad (sw) said;

" Show mercy to those on the earth, and the One (Allah (swt)) in the heavens will show mercy to you."

(Man La Yaḥḍuruh al-Faqih (Vol. 4) by Shaykh Muḥammad b. 'Ali al-Ṣaḍuq, Book 1, Chapter 175, Ḥadith #5806)

The Virtues of Benefiting Others: A Summary

The tradition enumerates numerous spiritual and practical virtues associated with being beneficial to others:

Divine Love and Protection: Those who benefit others are beloved to Allah and under

His special protection. Imam Musa al-Kadhim (peace be upon him) stated:

" The generous person of good character is under Allah's protection - Allah does not abandon him until He enters him into Paradise. Allah has not sent any prophet or successor except that he was generous, nor was any of the righteous except that he was generous. My father continued to counsel me about generosity until he passed away. And he said: Whoever gives out the complete zakat from his wealth and places it in its proper place will not be asked from where he acquired his wealth."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 21, Section 7, Chapter 22, Hadith 27820)

Paradise as the Ultimate Reward: Multiple narrations emphasize that Paradise is the residence of the generous and those who benefit others. The Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) declared:

" The generous person is close to Allah, close to people and close to Paradise."

(Bihar al-Anwar, v. 73, p. 308, no. 37)

Removal of Calamities: Charity and beneficence protect from calamities and even lengthen life. The Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) taught:

"Give charity, and cure your sick ones through the giving of charity, for verily charity repels accidents and illnesses, and is a source of increase in your life spans and your good deeds."

(Mizan-Al-Hikmah)

Effective cure: Imam Ali (peace be upon him) said,

"Charity is an effective cure."

(Nahjul Balaghah, Saying 7)

Free one from the Fire: Imam Jafar al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) said:

" 'The best of you are the generous ones, and the worst of you are the miserly ones. Being good is doing good deeds for your brethren and trying to fulfill their needs. Such deeds will debase Satan, free man from the Fire and take him into Paradise. O Jamil! Relate this to the noble ones from amongst your friends.'"

(Al-Khisal)

Part Two: Most Upright in Fulfilling His Rights (وَأَقْوَمُهُمْ يَحَقُّهُ)

The second characteristic of those beloved to Allah is their steadfastness in fulfilling Allah's rights. This encompasses a comprehensive devotion to divine commandments and a deep sense of accountability.

The Meaning of "Allah's Rights"

The concept of haqq Allah (the right of Allah) refers to the obligations that the Creator has established for His creatures. These include the fundamental duties of worship, obedience, and ethical conduct.

Imam Ali (peace be upon him) says:

"I swear by my soul that the Imam of the people can be the one who gives orders according to the Holy Book of Allah and should have his belief in the true faith and he should restrain his desires"

(Lesson From Quran-Muhsin Qaraati)

The Ahl al-Bayt (peace be upon them) are described as "the Proofs of Allah" and those "who stand for the Commandments of Allah." Their lives serve as the perfect exemplification of upholding Allah's rights.

The Centrality of Obedience and Piety

The tradition emphasizes that the most beloved servants are the most pious and obedient. The Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) taught:

" The most beloved of Allah's servants to Him are those that are the most useful to His servants, and the most persistent of them in establishing His right, those who endear virtue and its practices."

(Tuhaf al-'Uqul, no. 49)

Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) said:

"Three qualities which, when present in a person, enable him to savour the taste of faith: that nothing is more beloved to him than Allah and His Messenger, that to be burned in the Fire is more beloved to him than to denounce his religion, and that he loves for the sake of Allah and hates for the sake of Allah."

(Kanz al-'Ummal, no. 72)

The key to attaining nearness to Allah is obedience. From Abu Basir who said: I asked Abu Abdullah (Imam Jafar al-Sadiq) (peace be upon him) about the saying of Allah Mighty and Majestic: "Fear Allah as He should be feared" [Quran 3:102]. He said: "He is obeyed and not disobeyed, He is remembered and not forgotten, He is thanked and not denied."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 15, Section 2, Chapter 18, Hadith 20366)

The Path of Piety and Righteousness

Imam Zayn al-'Abidin (peace be upon him) taught about the person most beloved to

Allah:

"Verily the one who Allah is most pleased with from among you is the one who is the most generous towards his own dependents."

(Islam And Interactions Social Life-Abolfazl Sabouri)

Imam Muhammad al-Baqir (peace be upon him) elaborated on the qualities of beloved servants:

"The most beloved servant of Allah in His sight is a servant to whom providing Benevolent Assistance is most beloved and who loves to perform such act."

(Al-Kafi, Volume 4, Book 1, Chapter 20, Hadith #3)

The Most Beloved Actions

The tradition identifies specific actions that are particularly beloved to Allah, demonstrating how one can uphold His rights:

1. Performing Obligatory Acts: The most beloved thing to Allah is performing what He has made obligatory. Imam Jafar al-Sadq (peace be upon him) said the following:

"Allah, the Most Blessed, the Most High, has said, 'The most beloved matter to Me through which My servant seeks to be loved is to fulfill what I have made obligatory upon him.'"

(Al-Kafi (Vol. 2) by Shaykh Muḥammad b. Ya'qub al-Kulayni, Book 1, Chapter 40, Ḥadith #5)

2. Prayer (Salat): The Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) described prayer as the most beloved action to Allah.

From Ibn Masud who said: I asked the Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him): Which deeds are most beloved to Allah? He said: Prayer at its proper time. I said: Then what? He said: Being good to parents. I said: Then what? He said: Striving (jihad) in the path of Allah.

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 4, Section 2, Chapter 1, Hadith 4651)

3. Fulfilling Rights of Others: Among the most beloved actions is fulfilling the rights of believers. Imam al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) stated:

"Allah has never been worshipped with anything better than fulfilling the right of a believer."

(Kitab Al-Mumin-Al Husayn Ibn Said Al-Kufi-Al-Ahwazi)

4. Consistency in Good Deeds: Even small deeds, when performed consistently, are beloved.

Imam Mohamad Baqir (peace be upon him) said:

"The most beloved deeds to Allah, the Mighty and Majestic, are those that the servant maintains consistently even if they are small."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 1, Section 2, Chapter 21, Hadith 224)

Imam Zayn al-Abidin (peace be upon him) said,

"The best of deeds in the sight of Allah are those that are performed habitually, even if they be few in number."

(Mizan Al-Hikmah)

Characteristics of the Upright Servant

The tradition describes the most beloved servants as possessing specific characteristics:

Truthfulness and Trustworthiness: The Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) taught:

"The nearest of you to me on the Day of Resurrection and the worthiest of my intercession will be the one who is the most truthful amongst you, the most reliable amongst you in regard to his trusts, the most genial of you in disposition, and the closest amongst you to the common people."

(Forty Hadith Exposition-Sayyid Ruhullah Musawi Khomeini)

Humility and Simplicity: The beloved servant lives simply, finds peace in prayer, and worships God in solitude. As the tradition describes:

Imam Jafar al Sadiq (peace be upon him) said,

"A believer's characteristics include strength of religiousness; limited gentleness; certitude in belief; eagerness in understanding the religion; liveliness in guidance; constant in kindness; being shut-eyed at lustfulness; knowledgeableness accompanied with patience; gentleness in gratitude; proper generosity; frugality at times of being wealthy; patience at times of poverty; forgiveness at times of being in power; obedience to his leader; eagerness to piety; wanting to attend holy war; praying even though he is busy; patience at times of difficulty; strength at times of calamities; patience with disagreeable things; thankfulness when receiving blessings; not backbiting; not being haughty; not oppressive; patience when oppressed; not cutting off ties of kinship; not lazy; not bad-tempered; not hard-hearted; his eyes are not after lust; doesn't overeat; will not be overcome by lust; doesn't get jealous of the people; is neither too stingy, nor a spendthrift - rather he is frugal; assists the oppressed; has mercy with the indigent; exerts himself for the sake of others, while others are in comfort due to him; is not attached to this world; doesn't complain to the people about the hardships of this world; others are after their own business, but he doesn't get too involved with his business; doesn't get weary of being patient; doesn't get feeble in his opinion; would never spoil his religion; would guide whoever consults with him; would assist whoever assists him; abstains from what is vain, insulting and out of ignorance. These are a believer's characteristics."

(Al-Khiṣāl by Shaykh Muḥammad b. 'Alī al-Ṣaḍuq, Book 24, Chapter 2, Ḥadīth #23)

Inner Self-Reformation: Imam Jafar al Sadq (peace be upon him) said:

"The Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him and his family) said: Four traits, whoever has them, even if he had sins from his head to his feet, Allah would replace them with good deeds: truthfulness, modesty, good character, and gratitude."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 12, Section 1, Chapter 110, Hadith 15973)

Patience and Contentment: The beloved servant is patient in hardship and content with Allah's decree. Amir al-Muminin Imam Ali (peace be upon him) used to say:

"O son of Adam, if you want from this world what suffices you, then the least of what is in it will suffice you. But if you want what does not suffice you, then all that is in it will not suffice you."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 21, Section 7, Chapter 15, Hadith 27775)

The Comprehensive Nature of Righteousness

Imam al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) said:

"Indeed, Allah, Blessed and Exalted is He, specified the Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him and his family) with the noblest of moral traits. Hence, test yourselves; if they are in you, then praise Allah, Exalted and Glorious is He, and desire towards Him for more of them. Then he mentioned them, the ten: certainty, contentment, patience, thankfulness, satisfaction, good mannerisms, openhandedness, sense of honor, courage and manliness."

(Ma'ani al-'Akhbar by Shaykh Muḥammad b. 'Alī al-Ṣaḍuq, Book 1, Chapter 182, Ḥadīth #3)

The Drops Beloved to Allah

Imam Zayn al-'Abidin (peace be upon him) identified two drops particularly beloved to Allah:

"There is no drop which is dearer to Allah more than two drops: The drop of blood (which drips out) on the course of Allah (Jihad) & the drop of tear in the darkness of night by which a servant does not want anything except (pleasing & loving) Allah"

(Bihar ul-Anwar Vol. 100, P 10)

This teaching illustrates that both physical sacrifice for the faith and sincere spiritual devotion in solitude are deeply cherished.

The Danger of Hypocrisy

The tradition also warns against the greatest threat to upholding Allah's rights: insincerity and hypocrisy. Imam Zain-ul-Abideen (peace be upon him) said:

"The most hated people before God are those who have accepted leadership of an Imam but do not follow his actions."

(Tuhaful Uqul, page 202)

This highlights that true devotion requires not just intellectual acceptance but practical implementation of divine guidance.

Part Three: To Whom Good is Made Beloved (الَّذِينَ يُحِبُّ إِلَيْهِمُ)

(الْمَعْرُوفُ وَفِعَالُهُ)

The third characteristic of those beloved to Allah is an intrinsic, heartfelt love for goodness (al-ma'ruf) and its practice. This dimension goes beyond merely performing good deeds; it encompasses a transformed inner disposition.

The Meaning of Ma'ruf

Al-Ma'ruf (literally "that which is known") refers to all that is recognized as good, virtuous, and righteous in Islamic tradition. It encompasses the full spectrum of goodness—from the obligatory to the recommended, from external actions to internal states.

Those who are beloved to Allah are described as those to whom goodness and its practice have been made beloved by Allah Himself. This is a divine gift—a transformation of the heart that makes virtue not merely an obligation but a passion.

The Inner Transformation

This tradition emphasizes that the beloved servants are not merely compliant with divine commands but are internally inclined toward virtue. As Imam Mohammad Baqir (peace be upon him) stated:

"Indeed among the most beloved servants of Allah to Allah are those whom He has made to love good deeds and made them love doing them."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 16, Section 3, Chapter 1, Hadith 21560)

Imam Mohammad Baqir (peace be upon him) described this inner transformation:

"If you want to know if there is good in you, then look at your heart. If it loves the people who obey Allah and hates those who disobey Him, then there is good in you and Allah loves you. And if it hates the people who obey Allah and loves those who disobey Him, then there is no good in you and Allah hates you. And a person is with whom he loves."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 16, Section 2, Chapter 18, Hadith 21300)

The Comprehensive Virtues of Beloved Servants

From Imam Mohammad Baqir (peace be upon him) who said:

"The Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) was asked about the best of servants? He said: Those who when they do good they feel glad, and when they do wrong they seek forgiveness, and when they are given they show gratitude, and when they are tested they show patience, and when they become angry they forgive."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 1, Section 2, Chapter 24, Hadith 260)

Another narration describes the beloved servants as those who:

From Ali ibn Uthman ibn Razin, from who narrated it, from the Commander of the Faithful (peace be upon him) who said:

"Six qualities, whoever has them will be before Allah and on His right: Indeed Allah loves the Muslim person who loves for his brother what he loves for himself, dislikes for him what he dislikes for himself, is sincere in friendship, recognizes my virtue, follows in my footsteps, and considers my end."

The Place of Generosity and Good Character

Goodness encompasses both generosity and good character. The Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) taught:

"Nothing shall ensure the welfare (and interests) of your religion except generosity and good disposition."

(Anecdotes For Reflection-part 3-Sayyid Ali Akbar Sadaaqaat)

Prophet Mohammad (peace be upon him and his family) said:

"Be good- tempered, for the most good- tempered are the best in religion"

(Nahj Al-Fasahah)

Prophet Mohammad (peace be upon him and his family) said:

"Islam is to be good-natured"

(Mizan-Al-Hikmah)

The Virtues of Gentleness, Clemency and Leniency

Gentleness is among the most beloved qualities. Imam Mohammad Baqir (peace be upon him) said:

"Indeed Allah is gentle and loves gentleness, and He gives for gentleness what He does not give for harshness."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 15, Section 2, Chapter 27, Hadith 20478)

Prophet Mohammad (peace be upon him and his family) said:

"When Allah wishes to bestow good on a household, he introduces leniency into it."

(Sharh Nahjul Balaghah li Ibn Abi al-Hadid, v. 6, p. 339)

Prophet Mohammad (peace be upon him and his family) said:

"Verily Allah, Mighty and Exalted, is lenient and loves leniency in all matters."

(Kanz al-'Ummal, no. 537)

Clemency and forbearance are also beloved. Imam Ali Zayn al-'Abidin (peace be upon him) taught that among the most lovable ways to Allah are:

"The Messenger of Allah (peace be upon him and his family) said: Among the most beloved paths to Allah, the Mighty and Majestic, are two gulps: a gulp of anger returned with forbearance, and a gulp of calamity returned with patience."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 12, Section 1, Chapter 114, Hadith 16005)

ثَلَاثٌ يَبْلُغَنَّ بِالْعَبْدِ رِضْوَانَ اللَّهِ تَعَالَى: كَثْرَةُ الْإِسْتِغْفَارِ، وَلِينُ الْجَانِبِ، وَكَثْرَةُ الصَّدَقَةِ. وَثَلَاثٌ مَنْ كُنَّ فِيهِ لَمْ يَنْدَمْ: تَرَكَ الْعَجَلَةَ وَالْمَشُورَةَ، وَالتَّوَكُّلَ عَلَى اللَّهِ عِنْدَ الْعِزْمِ. (احقاق الحق ج 12 ص 438)

Imam Mohammad Taqi (peace be upon him) said:

There are three (acts, which make the servants reach the good pleasure & approval of Allah

- 1. Plentifulness of repentance.
- 2. Soft natured & forbearance.
- 3. Abundance of alms giving.

And there are three acts the doer of which does not repent.

- 1. Not making hurry.
- 2. Taking advice.
- 3. Trusting Allah while making decision

(Ehqaq ul-Haqq, Vol. 12, P 438)

The Path to Love

The tradition teaches that love for goodness begins with divine grace and is cultivated through practice. Imam (peace be upon him) taught:

"Give charity early in the day, for calamities do not surpass it. Whoever gives charity at the beginning of the day, Allah (swt) will protect him from the evil that descends from the sky that day. And if he gives charity at the beginning of the night, Allah (swt) will protect him from the evil that descends from the sky during that night."

(Man La Yahduruh al-Faqih (Vol. 2) by Shaykh Muḥammad b. 'Ali al-Ṣaduq, Book 1, Chapter 20, Ḥadith #6)

Imam Jafar al Sadiq (peace be upon him) said:

"Whoever gives charity in the morning, Allah will protect him from the misfortune of that day."

(Wasa'il al-Shia Vol. 11, Section 5, Chapter 15, Hadith 15056)

The more one practices goodness, the more it becomes beloved. As Imam Ali (peace be upon him) advised:

"Train yourself to be generous, select the best of virtues and these virtues will become your habit."

(Principles of Upbringing Children-Ibrahim Amini)

Part Four: The Ahl al-Bayt as the Living Embodiment

The teachings examined above find their perfect embodiment in the Ahl al-Bayt—the purified Household of the Prophet (peace be upon them). The Imams (peace be upon them) exemplify the three characteristics identified in the prophetic saying.

Most Beneficial to His Servants

The Ahl al-Bayt are described as the ultimate guides and benefactors of humanity. They are:

"A source of spiritual guidance and wisdom"

Likened to "Noah's Ark," providing salvation to those who adhere to them

Those "for whom wisdom flows on their tongues"

Their entire mission was dedicated to serving Allah's creation by leading them to truth and salvation.

The verse:

"You are the best nation that has been raised up for the (benefit of) people" (Qur'an 3:110)

Is understood to highlight their crucial role in guiding and leading the Muslim community for the benefit of others.

These are some qualities of Ahl al-Bayt described by the poet of faith, al-Kumayt:

They are close to generosity and far from the injustice in the ties of the precepts.

They give right answer on the matter over which the people differ. They have established the rules of Islam.

They are sufficient protectors at war when it becomes hot.

They are like rain when the people suffer from drought; they are like a shelter for the nursemaid of orphans.

They are overweighing in opinion, having perfect justice in behavior, and knowledgeable at heavy affairs.

They are leaders, but they are not like those who rule the people and the sheep in the same way.10

(Life Imam Mus Bin Jafar Al Kazim-Baqir Shareef Al Qurashi)

Most Upright in Fulfilling His Rights

The Ahl al-Bayt are the epitome of devotion to Allah's rights. Imam Ali (peace be upon him) declared:

"The Imam needs a wise heart, an expressive tongue and a staunch soul [i.e. authority] in establishing the truth."

(Ghurar al-Hikam, no. 11010)

Imam Husayn (peace be upon him) said:

"By my soul, there is no Imam but he issues judgement upon the Book, establishes justice, believes in the religion of Truth, and restrains his Self, alongside the way of Allah."

(Bundle Of Flowers-Sayyid Kamal Faqih Imani)

They are described as:

"The Proofs of Allah"

Those "who stand for the Commandments of Allah"

"The trustees of Allah's knowledge"

"The guardians of His religion"

To Whom Good is Made Beloved

The Ahl al-Bayt not only performed good deeds but were inherently drawn to all forms of goodness. Their love and devotion to Allah and His commands were unparalleled. Imam al-Sadiq (peace be upon him) taught:

"Verily, there are various degrees of serving Allah, but affection (and cordial inclination) for us, Ahlul Bayt, is the highest one."

(Bundle Of Flowers Sayyid Kamal Faqih Imani)

The concept of al-khayrat (good deeds) in their context is explicitly defined as "Love for the Ahl al-Bayt, also known as Wilayah."

Following Their Path

The teachings of the Ahl al-Bayt serve as the practical path for believers to cultivate these qualities:

1. Through Beneficence: Following their example of generosity and service
2. Through Piety: Emulating their devotion and adherence to divine commands
3. Through Love: Developing the same love for goodness and virtue

Prophet Mohammad (peace be upon him and his family) said,

"The first thing that a servant (i.e. a person) will be questioned about is the love for us - the Members of the Holy Household."

(Uyun akhbar al-Riḍa (Vol. 2) by Shaykh Muḥammad b. 'Ali al-Ṣaduq, Book 1, Chapter 1, Ḥadith #258)

Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him and his family) said:

"Abide to the cordiality of us, Ahl al-Bayt, for he who meets Allah with love for us will enter Paradise with our intercession. By Him Who holds my spirit, no servant benefits from his work except by the cognition of us."

(Amali al-Mufid by Shaykh al-Mufid, Volume 0, Page 13)

Part Five: Practical Applications

Cultivating Beneficence

Begin with Family: Start by serving those closest to you. The tradition emphasizes that "the most beloved creature to Allah is the one who is most beneficial to Allah's dependents (like family members) and who provides the utmost happiness to a family."

Extend to Community: Gradually extend service to neighbors, fellow believers, and then all of humanity. The Prophet (peace be upon him and his family) taught:

"The best of people is one whom people benefit from."

Serve All of Creation: Recognize that all creatures are Allah's dependents and deserve compassion. Prophet Mohammad (peace be upon him and his family) said:

"The All-Merciful, Blessed and most High, has mercy on those who are merciful (towards others). Have mercy on the dwellers of the earth and the [Lord of the] Heavens will have mercy on you."

(Kanz al-'Ummal, no. 5969)

Cultivating Piety

Fulfill Obligations: Begin with what is obligatory—prayer, fasting, zakat, and other divine commands. The most beloved thing to Allah is performing what He has made obligatory.

Develop Consistency: Even small deeds, when performed consistently, become beloved. The most beloved of deeds to Allah are those that are most regular, even if they are few.

Cultivating Love for Goodness

Seek Divine Grace: Remember that love for goodness is ultimately a divine gift. Pray to Allah to make goodness beloved to you.

Practice Virtue: Actively engage in good deeds even when difficult. The more one practices goodness, the more it becomes beloved.

Reflect on the Beauty of Goodness: Contemplate the inner beauty of virtue—its harmony with our nature, its benefits for society, and its rewards in the Hereafter.

Surround Yourself with Righteous People: Keep company with those who love goodness. Imam as-Sajjad (peace be upon him) said:

“The meeting of the righteous invites you to goodness.”

(Bundle Of Flowers Sayyid Kamal Faqih Imani)

Conclusion

The prophetic saying under examination presents a comprehensive vision of spiritual excellence that integrates three essential dimensions:

1. Active Beneficence: The most beloved servants actively serve and benefit others, recognizing all creation as Allah's dependents.
2. Upright Devotion: They steadfastly fulfill Allah's rights through obedience, piety, and comprehensive devotion.
3. Intrinsic Love for Goodness: They have been transformed so that goodness and its practice are beloved to them.

These three characteristics are not separate but mutually reinforcing. True beneficence flows from devotion to Allah. True devotion manifests in service to creation. Love for goodness encompasses both.

The Ahl al-Bayt (peace be upon them) embody this perfect synthesis, serving as both guides and exemplars. Following their path is the means by which believers can cultivate these qualities and attain nearness to Allah.

The tradition offers immense hope: the path to becoming among the most beloved servants is open to all who sincerely strive. The rewards—divine love, protection, and ultimately Paradise—are beyond measure. Prophet Mohammad (peace be upon him and his family) said:

"Allah has promised those who have believed among you and done righteous deeds that He will surely grant them succession [to authority] upon the earth just as He granted it to those before them and that He will surely establish for them [therein] their religion which He has preferred for them and that He will surely substitute for them, after their fear, security, [for] they worship Me, not associating anything with Me. But whoever disbelieves after that - then those are the defiantly disobedient." (Qur'an 24:55)

And among the signs of Allah's love for His servants is that

"At this time God, the Exalted, becomes his hearing and sight, power, knowledge and existence. Thereupon the character of the gnostic becomes divine."

(Forty Hadith Exposition-Sayyid Ruhullah Musawi Khomeini)

May Allah make us among those who are most beneficial to His servants, most upright in fulfilling His rights, and to whom goodness and its actions are made beloved.

"In the name of Allah, the Most Beneficent, the Most Merciful. All praise is due to Allah, Lord of the worlds. And may the blessings of Allah be upon Muhammad and his pure family."
